ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.

Twenty-five years ago, on Dec. 17, 1911, the Lutheran Church was dedicated by the sainted Rev. August Falkenberg of Hondo, at that time pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church. It was a clear day and a large assembly witnessed the solemn dedicatory rites. The Rev. F. Gerstmann, then of Meyersville, Texas, was the speaker.

The congregation was organized in the courthouse of Medina County August 23, 1908, and services were held in the Methodist church before the building was completed. The contract was let to Hurt and Jones of Hondo who erected the church at a cost of $2,770.00.

A special anniversary service will be held in memory of the occasion on Thursday, Dec. 17, at 7:30 P. M. The youngest son of the sainted pastor, Falkenberg, Rev. Milton Falkenberg of San Antonio, will be the speaker. The congregation recently renovated the building and beautified the interior in honor of the anniversary.

You are invited to rejoice with us at the special service. "I was glad when they said unto me: let us go into the house of the Lord."

MR. W. T. FORD DEAD.

Mr. Ford had been seriously ill in a Temple Hospital for several weeks but his condition was thought to be improved enough for him to be removed to his home earlier in the week. He suffered a sinking spell about 3 o'clock yesterday from which he never recovered.

Mr. Ford's remains will be brought to Hondo for burial. Funeral services will be held tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon, although at this time the hour is indefinite.

Mr. Ford has many friends here who deeply regret his untimely passing and extend their heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved widow.

"Pepper", Jane Withers' new Twentieth Century-Fox picture, opens Monday and Tuesday at the Colonial Theatre and promises to be the greatest hit in the mischievous miss' succession of triumphs. Irvin S. Cobb and Slim Summerville, two of film-land's most popular funsters, are featured with Jane with the cast also including Dean Jagger, Muriel Robert, Ivan Lebedeff, Maurice Mass and Romaine Callender. In "Pepper" Jane plays a window-busting, shink-kicking, tomato-throwing half-pint Robin Hood of lower New York whose pranks have the entire neighborhood in a constant uproar.

COCKRELL-CAMERON.

In an impressive double-ring ceremony, Miss Dwyce Maydelle Cameron, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Cameron of Hondo, became the bride of Mr. Joseph Cockrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cockrell of Austin, at 2:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, December 6, 1936, in the home of her parents in Hondo. Rev. W. S. Highsmith, pastor of the local Methodist Church, officiated. The vows were made in the presence of a number of relatives and close friends. The bride was attended by Miss Thelma Wilson of Hondo, and Mr. James Cockrell of Austin, nephew of the groom, served as best man.

The living room was beautifully arranged with white blossoms and fern, white bride's roses and fern ornamenting the fire place, and floor baskets holding masses of white pompon chrysanthemums and fern adding their charm to the scene. The ceremony was performed beneath a white arch from which extended a large white wedding bell and which was banked with snowy chrysanthemums in floor baskets.

The bride entered with her father and was met under the bower by the groom, while Mrs. R. C. Rath played the nuptial music. The bride's loveliness was enhanced by her bridal costume of coral wool crepe, made on princess lines and trimmed with squirrel fur, with which she wore a corsage of coral-hued roses. Miss Wilson's frock was of royal blue crepe fashioned with a swing skirt and trimmed with blue velvet. Her flowers were Talisman roses.

Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception was held. Refreshments of cake and coffee were served in the dining room, where the table was laid with a Venetian lace cloth and centered with the bride's cake, embossed in white and encircled by white rosebuds and lace fern. Lighted white tapers in crystal holders also adorned the table. White chrysanthemums in crystal vases and lighted tapers further decorated the dining room.

Miss Maggie Cameron was in charge of the bride's book. Mr. and Mrs. Cockrell left on a bridal trip to Monterey, Mexico, the bride wearing a brown wool costume suit trimmed in mink, and brown accessories. On their return the couple will make their home in Austin, Texas, where Mr. Cockrell is a sales representative of the Steck Company, printers and publishers.

Mrs. Cockrell graduated from Hondo High School in 1932 as one of the most popular members of the class. She attended Texas University at Austin and also Draughon's Business College in San Antonio. Prior to her marriage she was employed in the offices of the State Highway Department in Austin. Mr. Cockrell is formerly of Parkdale, Arkansas, and attended Arkansas A. and M. College.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were: Messrs. J. E. Best, Hart Jungman, Billy Smith, C. S. Lorenz, and W. D. Cross, Miss Gertrude Studdman, Mr. and Mrs. James Cockrell, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cockrell, Bessie L. and J. Walter Pierce, all of Austin, Misses Margaret and Clara Belle Blackaller, R. J. Schweers, Mrs. R. L. Sentell, and August Finger, all of San Antonio.

Contratulations and best wishes are extended the young couple by their many friends.

MORE ABOUT POISONING BOLL-WEEVILS.
In line with Mr. Clyde Hollaway's interview in last week's Anvil Herald on the results from poisoning boll-weevils, we are indebted to Mr. M. J. Wenmohs, Assistant in Agricultural Conservation of Mr. C. M. Merritt's office force, for the following summary of the results of County Demonstration in cotton poisoning.

On two farms where three applications of poison were made at the proper time, 200 acres produced 57 bales, or .285 of a bale per acre. Three thousand pounds of poison were used.

On seven farms where only two applications were made but at proper intervals, 475 acres produced 100 bales, or .21 of a bale per acre. On this acreage 4750 pounds of poison were used.

The nine farms where poison was used on an aggregate of 675 acres 157 bales were produced at an average of .223 of a bale per acre. The amount of poison applied was 7750 pounds.

On 10 other farms, two applications were made on 653 acres. These applications were made late, however, after the weevils had a good start, and only 108 bales, or an average of .165 of a bale per acre, were produced notwithstanding 6530 pounds of poison were used.

By way of comparison, a survey was made of 12 neighboring farms where no poison was used. On these twelve farms, an aggregate of 781 acres produced only 68 bales, or .087 of a bale to the acre.

These thirty-one farms were all in the neighborhood of Hondo and under such a similarity of conditions as to soil, weather, time of planting, methods of cultivation, etc., as to make it conclusive that the difference in yield was primarily due to the poisoning of the insect pests.

Crop production conditions vary so much one season with another that scientific observers hesitate to express positive conclusions until results have remained constant over a reasonable period of years.

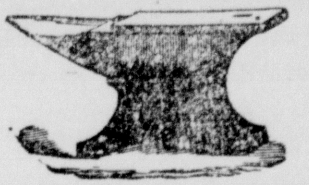

It seems reasonable, however, to conclude from the above facts that, uncertain as is cotton-growing under weevil and flea infestation, our farmers can grow cotton profitably if poisoning is done systematically. If begun early enough and persisted in at proper intervals the results are better than when delayed too long. And it follows logically that if all crops in a given community were being systematically treated throughout the season the results would be more favorable for all than where only a few are making a fight.

At any rate, the difference between a little better than a bale to four acres at a cost variously estimated at from 50c to $3.00 per acre for poisoning, and a little worse than ten acres to one bale where no poison was used is worth the serious consideration of all who attempt to grow cotton under weevil infestation.

IN THE SPIRIT OF THE SEASON.

By Clayton Rand.

* There was once a man with no music in his soul, who described a violin as an empty wooden box, strung with dead cat gut over which were made noises by scrapings with the hairs of a horse's tail.

* Of course there are those who lack sentiment—the kind to whom Santa Claus is only a silly fool dressed in red pants, wearing a false face and stuffed with a sofa pillow.

* Christmas can be a dead sort of day to a crusty soul, like that, out of tune with the Great Infinite.

* But to men and women on fire with the sheer joy of living, who love little children and have discovered the secret of real happiness in making others happy, there comes in such a season a little bit of what heaven must be really like. They are in the Spirit of the Season.

As the last thing on the program, the Grades Choral Club will sing "Jolly Old St. Nicholas" and "Christmas Carols". At the conclusion of these songs they will ask the audience to join in a community singing of "Silent Night" to end the program. the abundance of bristling, clean-cut and breezy western comedy that eliminates all possibilities of there being any dull or dead moments. A mischievous little cow girl, a bossy old woman, a funny Chinaman always in trouble and always looking for more, and Hezekiah Bugg, the biggest liar in the State of Arizona, will keep the audience in continual good humor.

—Owlets— GENERAL SCIENCE CLASS TAKES FIELD TRIP.

Monday afternoon the general science class took its first field trip of the year. The purpose of the trip was to study rocks, soils, soil formation, and erosion. The first stop was at Masonic Springs. Here, under the direction of Mr. Moses, the class studied the formation of gravel, the effect of a curve in the river on each bank, the various types of soil revealed in the cut bank, the effect trees have on soil formation, and the types of rock found in the gravel beds. Some interesting rocks and fossils were picked up by the students.

The next stop was to study a terraced field, and to note how terraces prevent washing. The use of oats as a winter cover crop to prevent washing and leaching was also noted.

—Owlets— REGIONAL CHAMPIONS TO BE DECIDED THIS WEEK.

The championship of Region 10-B will be at stake when the powerful Yoakum Bulldogs and the Alamo Heights Mules clash this week-end. Both teams gained the right to play for the regional tilt by defeating their opponents in bi-district tilts. Alamo Heights nosed out Carrizo Springs, the champion of our district, last Thursday by a score of 7-6. The Yoakum team defeated a band of fighting Smithville Tigers Friday night by a score of 18-13. The Mules will go into the game as the underdogs, owing to the fact that Yoakum, not playing with their usual strength, defeated a team which was as powerful as Smithville.

Heights is the champion of District 39-B and Yoakum is the champion of District 38-B.

—Owlets— F. F. A. NEWS.

On Tuesday, Dec. 1, the Chapter presented a program at the High School Auditorium for the farmers. The program was cut short due to the failure of the main speaker to appear. There was not a large attendance at the meeting, due to the bad weather, but the Chapter wishes to thank every one who did attend.

Friday, December 4, the classes of Vocational Agriculture castrated and vaccinated calves for Mr. Gilliam and Mr. O. E. Laughinghouse.

On Monday, the 7th, the classes castrated and docked 76 lambs for Mr. Leinweber.

The Chapter will send three judging teams to Sabinal to the Judging Contest to be held there. There will be teams for beef cattle judging, poultry judging, and for soil conservation. The winners will be given awards.

THIRD GRADE.

Arthur Dawson went quail hunting at Nester's Sunday.

Neoma Cosgrove spent Sunday in San Antonio.

Charles Miller spent Sunday in

ANTON BOHL DIES SUDDENLY AT DUNLAY.

This and adjoining communities were saddened Sunday when it was learned that Anton Bohl, 92, well and favorably known throughout the Medina Valley country, had died at his home of his daughter, Mrs. John Biediger, at Dunlay. Death came suddenly about 6 o'clock Sunday morning after he had retired feeling well Saturday night. Members of the family went to his room about 5:30 and found him restless and within a few moments he had passed on. The body was brought to the old homestead near LaCoste, where F. A.
Bohl now resides, from where funeral services were held at 9:30 Monday morning followed by a requiem mass at the Rev. Joseph Schaeffer. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery beside the grave of his departed wife. The pall-bearers were all grandchildren: Max and Anton Biediger, Harvey and Edward Bohl and Wesley Hutzler. Harvey Haby, a great grandson, was crossbearer.

Anton Bohl was born at Burbach, Alsace, in 1844 and came to the United States with his parents when he was but six weeks old. He lived with his parents at the mission in San Antonio for two years after arrival in this country and then moved to Castrovilla, where he grew to manhood. On December 7, 1875, he was married to Miss Carolina Schmidt at St. Louis Church in Castroville. Four children were born to this union, three of whom survive him, William and Frank Bohl and Mrs. John Hutzler. One daughter, Mrs. Agatha Biediger, preceded him in death. He is survived by 13 grandchildren, 8 great grandchildren, and two sisters, Mrs. Catherine Jungman of LaCoste and Mrs. Agatha Becker of Macdonia.

For 52 years Anton Bohl has lived in the LaCoste community. For a few years after his marriage he lived at Delta, then moved to the place where his wife was born 81 years ago. An event of more than pleasing interest took place at the Bohl family home on December 7, 1925, when Mr. and Mrs. Bohl celebrated their golden anniversary, a part of which was a high mass in St. Mary's Church at LaCoste, with Rev. James Marsollier officiating. At that time all four of the children were present
along with many invited guests.
In the death of Anton Bohl the community loses a worthy and noble
man, one who lived for the future,
hoping to make the community a better place in which to live for his children and grandchildren. He will be missed from our midst. To the loved ones we offer tenderest sympathy.

THE WAY OF SALVATION.

By Rev. J. T. Horger.
Article No. 9.

We wish to outline the process by which God leads in salvation. First, note that God is set forth as THREE persons, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. Each of these is a dispensation in the process of salvation. The first of these dispensations is set out in comprehensive outline, embracing the entire
of the Old Testament period,
and is known as the Father's Dispensation.

The second fundamental dispensation commenced with the New Testament—the birth of Christ—and extended to His ascension, and is known as the Dispensation of the Son. And the third dispensation, commenced with the descent of the Holy Ghost upon the 120 disciples on the day of Pentecost, and is known as the Holy Ghost Dispensation. Now the above dispensations are common to the theology of all our leading churches.

But it is not so commonly taught,
that there is a like three dispensation which come to each soul that believes, as the apostle admonishes, "On perfection." Yes, this is true, but it is extremely seldom that we teach it thus. But let the reader follow and watch closely and they will find that the Bible teaches three dispensations as to PRIN-CIPLES, but they are brought to the end in two works of grace.

Now these three dispensations are regeneration, which is conscious purging for all sin. Then Regeneration, which is the impartation of a Divine life to the soul. And the third is sanctification, which is the incoming of the Holy Ghost, Who casts out the "old man," "the carnal mind," the evil nature injected by Satan in the fall of Adam, and at our sanctification the abiding Comforter, to strengthen, to guide, to guard, and direct the child of God in the Christian life.

Yes, we enter the THREE cardinal principles, that of the Father, and that of the Son, and that of the Holy Ghost; but there is but one Executive that goes with us and works in us, through each of the three dispensations, and that is the Holy Ghost.
Every blessing of God is brought to us by the dove-like, ever-blessed Holy Ghost. He tenders and awakens our conscience; He convicts and converts; He leads to godly sorrow for sin and repentance, and causes us to seek and to exercise faith in God
preparation and His promise.

But what I wanted the reader to see is, that when it comes to Justification, the forgiveness of transgression against a righteous principle or law, it properly belongs to the Father's Dispensation, for the law and principles requiring righteousness were given by the Father under the Old Testament; in fact, righteousness is a constituent of the Godhead and reckoned as belonging to the Father's Dispensation. Nevertheless, when God forgives it is the Holy Ghost that brings the glad news to the heart and rolls the sense of condemnation away, and bears witness to the justification of the soul. It is pertaining to the Father's Dispensation, but the Holy Ghost is the Executive. Thus Justification becomes the first dispensation.

Next we consider Regeneration,
which comes along with Justification,
and is established at the same time in the heart, but is altogether a different principle or trait of character, and because of its constituent principle, it belongs to the second, the Son's Dispensation. Now the seed germ of Regeneration is God's Word pertaining to salvation; note that Jesus was called the WORD; and St.
James says, "Of his own will begat
he us with the WORD of truth," James 1: 18. St. Paul says: "For in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the GOSPEL." The point I am trying to make, is that the WORD of God, heard, believed, accepted and cherished in the heart, under the influence and power of the Holy Ghost, becomes a new creation after the image, person and powers of Christ,
known as the new creature in Christ Jesus. Now note that this new creation is the image, principles and character of Jesus Christ, created in us by the Holy Ghost; but note that Regeneration is not the Holy Ghost, nor is the Holy Ghost enthroned in the heart when we are thus born of the Spirit.

Next, what about Sanctification?
The soul is sanctified by the baptism with the Holy Ghost and fire, Who then enters the heart, and as stated in Math. 3:12, "Whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner; but he will BURN up the chaff with unquenchable fire."
This is the fire of the Holy Ghost, and He will burn the "old man" of carnality out of "house and home",
and purify the heart from every sin stain. And the Holy Ghost, the Executive of all righteousness, takes his place, to abide in the heart, to comfort and console, to guard and guide, to strengthen and to empower against evil, and to qualify for service. Justification with Regeneration constitute the first work of grace; Sanctification, by the incoming of the Holy Ghost, is the second work of grace.

I know I am doing what many preachers will not venture to do, i. e.
to touch the precise process, manner,
mood and method by which a soul is saved by a Bible standard of salvation. Possibly some preachers may not be clear on the subject themselves; but I presume that the greatest cause of their indefinite expressions on his, the most vital subject on earth, is, that both theologians and privates, differ as to the WHAT and HOW of salvation. But with me,
the subject is too vital; the issues
and final results, as to the destiny of the people; and my eternal responsibility as a minister of God, for me to EVADE the plainly stated truth set forth in God's Word, so long as I believe that He has revealed through His Word, under the leadership of His Spirit, "The Way of Salvation". And believing I know, I feel under God, not only bound to tell what I know, but to point out the Scriptures bearing on the different phases of salvation. And I know it is no small job, for one who doesn't know the teachings of God's Word,
on any fundamental doctrine pertaining to EXPERIMENTAL salvation;
in fact, there is no other real salvation. And for one to take time to read and study my, or any other teaching pertaining to salvation, and then to read the Bible references and study them, to know whether the writer has the truth or not, is no child's job. But if it takes that for you to believe God's promises relative to either the new birth or sanctification, you had better pay the price ten times over, diligently searching the Scriptures daily, than to take a chance of losing your immortal soul.

King Edward Defies Cabinet, Clinging to Mrs. Simpson—
Garner Mixes in House Leadership Battle—President's Buenos Aires Address.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

CONFRONTED with the opposition of his cabinet, the high clergy, the leaders of both the Conservative and the Labor parties and goodness knows how many of the ordinary people of his empire, King Edward VIII insists on continuing his intimacy with Mrs. Wally Simpson, presumably with the intention of marrying her. And he does not intend to abdicate in order to cling to the American divorcee. Defying the disapproval of his advisers, the bachelor monarch proposes to test his constitutional right to wed the woman of his choice—provided she consents.

Such, at this writing, is the status of what has become a genuine crisis for the British empire, highly interesting to all the world. The cabinet discussed the affair at length and sent Prime Minister Baldwin to remonstrate with the king, but the statesman got nowhere with the self-willed ruler, and next day told the house of commons he was not yet ready to make a statement. Edward called together his close friends, including his brother the duke of York who would succeed him if he abdicated, and considered the next move in the serious situation. This might be the resignation of the cabinet and the refusal of party leaders to form another government. Some of the English statesmen, like Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, or David Lloyd George or Winston Churchill, might undertake the task at the request of the king, but probably none of them could command the necessary majority in the house. It is suggested that Edward might attempt to follow the example of Charles I, who set up a government without a parliament.

The British press at last has abandoned the self-imposed silence concerning the king's course but most of them declared their opposition or their regret. Public opinion will probably have a great deal to do with solving the problem.

The Church of England will not have Mrs. Simpson as King Edward's wife at any price, the Church Times, its organ, declared, lining up militantly behind Baldwin and the cabinet. Mrs. Simpson and her two previous husbands have been divorced and upon that the church takes its stand, was the Church Times' position.

It is reported on good authority that King Edward is negotiating the sale of his Canadian "EP" ranch to Lincoln Ellsworth, the American explorer.

BRITAIN'S house of lords killed Lord Ponsonby's "mercy death" bill by a vote of 35 to 14. It would have allowed a doctor to end the life of a patient suffering from an incurable and painful disease. The measure fell before the attack of churchmen, who opposed it on religious and moral grounds, and of doctors, who felt that the responsibility was too great to be assumed by their profession.

The archbishop of Canterbury made no objection to the bill on religious grounds, but said: "It is better to leave this difficult and delicate matter in the hands of the medical profession rather than drag it into the open and regulate it by legal procedure."

CALLLED back to Washington because he is acting President during the absence of Mr. Roosevelt, Vice President Garner promptly involved himself in the battle for the house leadership that is being waged by the supporters of John J. O'Connor of New York, chairman of the rules committee, and Sam Rayburn of Texas, chairman of the interstate commerce committee. Mr. Garner put himself behind his fellow Texan, declaring: "I am for Rayburn 200 per cent. He is the best equipped man for the job and I will do all I can to further his candidacy."

O'Connor's friends and other representatives who had been neutral were astounded and angered by what they considered an unwarranted intrusion by the vice president into a house contest. John D. Dingell of Michigan voiced this sentiment when he said: "The distinguished vice president has a big enough job on his hands as presiding officer of the senate without interfering with the organization of the house with which he has no connection whatsoever."

"The Democratic members of the house in the last congress were compelled to go through a campaign under the untrue accusations from the Republican enemy that they were mere 'rubber stamps' of the President. That accusation hurt the members' feelings sufficiently without rubbing it in by having the country get the notion that the duly elected Democratic members of the house are going to become the 'rubber stamps' of the vice president, so that the Lone Star state may run both ends of the capitol to the exclusion of any participation by any of the other 47 states."

ACCORDING to the New York Daily News, Former President Herbert Hoover may become an expatriate. The newspaper quoted Mr. Hoover "intimates here and in Washington" that he had virtually decided to take up indefinite residence in England as did Col. Charles Lindbergh more than a year ago.

Recalling that Mr. Hoover had seldom lived in the United States after his graduation from Stanford university until the war years, the Daily News said that some of the happiest years of his life had been spent in London, which was headquarters for his mining enterprises in all parts of the world.

AS THE cruiser Indianapolis and its convoy, the Chester, entered the harbor of Buenos Aires, a salute to President Roosevelt boomed from the guns of eleven warships, ten squadrons of airplanes wheeled overhead, and thousands of cheering citizens crowded the water front. Argentinians generally approve of Mr. Roosevelt's policies and he was welcomed to their capital as "a great benevolent dictator." They had planned to give him an elaborate reception, but it was toned down somewhat at his request. President Justo, who already had greeted the distinguished guest by wireless, met him at the dock and accompanied him to the American embassy. Then Mr. Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull and members of the American delegation to the peace conference made a formal call at the government house.

Next day, after a ride about the city, President Roosevelt attended the extraordinary session in the legislative palace to open the Pan-American peace conference which he initiated. A formal dinner for him at the government house and a reception for all conference delegates followed. The event of the third day was a luncheon at the American embassy in honor of President and Mrs. Justo. Then Mr. Roosevelt embarked and started on the return trip, with a brief stop at Montevideo, capital of Uruguay.

In his eloquent address before the peace conference Mr. Roosevelt set forth his program for banishing war from the Americas and erecting economic barriers against war elsewhere in the world. The first task in achieving this, he said, is "making war in our midst impossible," and the second step is to insure the continuance of democracy in the western hemisphere as the best guarantee of peace. He warned the "war mad" nations bent on conquest that the American republics "stand shoulder to shoulder" in readiness to "consult together for our mutual safety and our mutual good."

GERMANY'S cabinet, with Hitler presiding, promulgated a number of startling edicts for the furtherance of the Goering four-year plan of rehabilitation of the reich. Most important of these is the "economic sabotage" law, decreeing death for Germans who "unscrupulously" hoard wealth abroad and "damage the German economy."

This is directed against violators of recent injunctions which put within reach of the government between 1,500,000,000 and 2,000,000,000 marks ($600,000,000 to $800,000,000) which could be converted into foreign currencies should the necessity arise.

Another law orders the incorporation of every German boy and girl without exception, in the Hitler youth movement, for physical, spiritual and moral training.

The "youth leader of the German reich," Baldur von Schirach, was made responsible directly to Hitler and given the rank of a supreme Nazi authority.

REPORTS to the senate campaign funds committee show that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., gave $70,000 to Republican campaign funds, while Democratic organizations received $50,000 from Mrs. James R. H. Cromwell, formerly Doris Duke, the tobacco heiress.

The committee said it hoped to trace the source of most of the $13,000,000 spent by scores of political organizations in the last campaign as a basis for legislative recommendations to the President and congress.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington. — In proposing a peace pact for the western hemisphere, President Roosevelt in his speech at Buenos Aires has directed attention to two important positions that the United States has taken in its foreign relations. Whether Mr. Roosevelt so intended or whether it is by the very nature of the circumstance, he nevertheless has set up before the American people the necessity for re-examination of the age-old Monroe doctrine and has brought up for fresh scrutiny the policies of President Woodrow Wilson that were designed to establish eventually world peace by collectivist action.

I think that it must be admitted that the Wilson policies for international peace have not worked. Anyone who examines them squarely and frankly must recognize one outstanding inescapable fact: they have proved to be the illusions of an idealist.

They constitute a landmark, however, and in so doing it seems to me they should serve as a guide on what not to do. Candidly, the Wilson policies, beautiful in theory that they were, have been shown to be futile because they did not consider the perfidy nor the chicanery of European statesmen. They were predicated upon a belief that the world leaders were sincere in their desire for peace—and it is sad but true that such is not the case. In other words, the Wilson theories that were built up into a supergovernment to be called the League of Nations overlooked the element of human fallibility.

It requires only a brief review of the history of the League of Nations to reveal the definite conclusion that there is an absolute lack of sincerity on the part of the European statesmen. Each one has been concerned only with gains and advantages accruing to his own nation. His actions have been permeated to the core with selfishness, sometimes aggravated with desires for personal distinction. The league fell down in dealing with Russia's Stalin and Germany's Hitler. It took a mighty flop in the movement to check Italy's Mussolini in Ethiopia. Having flattened out, none of the three above mentioned has any respect for the league authority. When you add to this the absolute dismissal of the league as a world influence as was done by Japan, you have less than nothing left.

Mussolini said the other day that in order to straighten out the European tangle it would be necessary to wipe out all of the "Wilsonian illusions." He could have referred only to the Wilsonian slogan upon which we entered the World war, namely, the "war to make the world safe for democracy." Later, it will be remembered, the World war was "the war to end war." Neither of these slogans bore fruit. Each was an illusion, a dream of world peace held by a great man whose only weakness in assuming world leadership was that he trusted other statesmen as he trusted the American people, to arrive at a sound conclusion and stick to it.

I am not prepared to say that the Wilson policies led us in a wrong direction. The fact remains, however, that the war that was to make the world safe for democracy led directly into destruction of democracy and the establishment of fascism and communism in various parts of the world as an important factor in the government of peoples. All of this, of course, was not visible nor predictable at the time the policies were initiated. It is all too plain now, however, and that is why President Roosevelt can very well be governed in his new move with the Pan-Americans. He can proceed upon a Pan-American basis with at least a hope of success because it is quite apparent that the Americas, North and South, can protect themselves if arrangements for prevention of war relate only to the western hemisphere. International affairs will have to be considered, obviously. But among those authorities with whom I have talked about this problem, there seems to be little doubt that if the idea of collectivist action, first enunciated in the Wilson policies—is to avail anything, it must be applied not to the world but to a section of the world.

I noted in the official agenda, the program outline of the Buenos Aires conference, that no reference at all was made to the Monroe doctrine. Apparently, that course had to be followed. The Monroe doctrine is a ticklish matter among our neighbors to the south. Frankly, they do not like it.

Considering all of the factors involved in the Monroe doctrine, there seems no conclusion ahead but eventual abandonment of that pronouncement. When I say that, I do not mean that the principles of the Monroe doctrine need be thrown into the ocean. Yet, the name has been the focal point around which much antagonism has been built up and the romantic Latin blood of South America can hardly be expected ever again to subscribe to the Monroe doctrine by that name.

What, then, is the course?

The Monroe doctrine, whether it was ever so intended, has placed the United States in a position where it is made to appear as a boss. No nation of people enjoys being bossed. So, if the Buenos Aires conference is to result in a definite understanding by which the peoples of the western hemisphere are welded together in an effective group, some understanding must be evolved which will replace the ill will engendered by the Monroe doctrine. Possibly, that understanding lies in the direction being followed by President Roosevelt. Apparently, he is willing to subordinate the Monroe doctrine and concede to those other peoples on behalf of the United States the end of our overlordship.

Undoubtedly, it will be a slow process. Present generations throughout the South American nations will be suspicious for a time and will move with caution but there are many who believe in eventual agreement among the western nations on a general policy that will keep us all out of European and Far Eastern entanglements to a greater extent than ever before.

The thing that may break down the apparent Roosevelt plan is the circumstance of drawn swords and cocked rifles in Europe at the moment. It is entirely possible that before concrete action among the North and South American peoples can be accomplished, explosions in Europe may take place. If they do, propaganda agents of the conflicting powers will be abroad in instant. Attempts will be made to alienate various nations in the western hemisphere, to align them with one side or the other in the European controversy. It may well be that this condition will ruin the Roosevelt program before it gets under way but a start has been made and succeeding generations will profit if the peoples of North and South America can come to regard themselves as an individual group that is willing to make sacrifices necessary to cut off European connections when the European statesmen insist on fighting.

There is yet one more thought concerning the South American sessions. There are students of international affairs who already are saying that history has repeated itself and that the United States has lost, as usual, in its diplomatic dealings. They are saying that the revision of the Monroe doctrine and the rebirth of that policy under a new name represents a gift by the United States. It may well be that such has occurred. But among saner minds, I believe the conviction is that the Monroe doctrine already has undergone so many alterations and revisions that a major operation on its structure will clarify the picture. The Monroe doctrine was designed originally, of course, to prevent European nations from gaining a foothold in either of the Americas. That danger is definitely past. Why, then, is it necessary to perpetuate an antiquated policy that has no purpose any longer? Thus, it seems to me that if a revision, even a casting out of the Monroe doctrine can eliminate suspicion of our government's purposes among those peoples inhabiting the same hemisphere, it is not too much to pay.

There was a great banquet held at one of the hotels in Washington a few days ago. It is not unusual for great banquets to be held in the capital city but most of them are just banquets. The one to which I refer, however, had a significance that is quite unusual. It commemorated the establishment of the United States patent office and celebrated its one hundredth birthday.

Something like eleven hundred inventors, research scientists, representatives of industry and patent office officials entered the great dining room by candlelight. Then, the toastmaster waved a wand over one of the greatest inventions of modern times and the room was bathed in an electric brilliance like of which has never been seen. The action typified, told the story of, scientific development in the United States and elsewhere.

"Did you tell her you were happy?" "Yes. But . . . she's going to be watching very closely for proof." She stopped. The color began to rise under her white skin. Bryn watched it, bewitched. Her eyes were lowered. "What . . . what are we going to do about it?" he asked, lost. "Happy with you," Deborah explained, as if he did not understand. "Does she think I'm in love with you?" "Yes," Deborah replied, and flushed delicately. "You're a much better actress than I am. I'm sure she's beginning to suspect me." "When you go out the door," Bryn explained, "I stand and look after you. And when I hear you coming I go to meet you. And when you're talking I keep looking at you, and when you're away I talk to her about you. I tell her how beautiful you are, how much more beautiful than any girl I ever knew, with those lovely eyes, and your lashes, as long as a dream, and your mouth, and your little white chin, and the way you blush . . . and your heart, so soft and white, and the way you move your shoulders, and the color of your hair, and the way it curls." She drew a deep breath. "Oh, dear," she sighed. "No wonder she thinks I'm not in love with you. I haven't told her once anything about you. I've hardly mentioned you." "Well," Bryn said after a moment, "I tell you. When you're in love, Deborah, you hate to be away from your . . . from your sweetheart for a second. Everything she does is perfect and lovely and sweet. You want to lift her in your arms and hold her tight against you, so close that you can hear her heart beating. You want to hear her say that she'll never leave you again, no matter what happens, but she doesn't care anything about anybody else in the world but you, and if it happened that she didn't love you," Bryn went on slowly, "there'd be a sick empty feeling where your heart ought to be, and you'd wish you were a kid again, so you could cry. But if she did love you, and she knew you weren't sure about her, she'd put her arms around you, and put her cheek against yours, and maybe even . . . kiss you."

Deborah was staring at him. After a moment she said breathlessly, "Is that the way you love your . . . your girl?" "Yes, Deborah."

"I don't know anything about that way of loving," she said at last. "I couldn't pretend that to Grandmother."

"No," Bryn said.

"It wasn't so much what I ought to say to Grandmother, anyway," she said. "I hadn't really thought of talking to her about you. It was the way I ought to act. I was wondering . . ."

"Yes?"

"It's really Gary's idea," she said hastily. "He came to me about it this morning. He's afraid Grandmother might get to wondering about us. You see, she thinks we . . . we love each other the way other people do when they're married," she explained.

"I suspected as much," Bryn said lightly. "Well, is there something I can do about it?"

"I'm afraid she's going to be watching for a while, anyway. Until she's satisfied. I was wondering . . . it's Gary's idea, you know. There's a little sewing room just at the head of the stairs. There's a door into my sitting room. Grandmother never goes in there; if you don't mind dreadfully, you could have it for your bedroom."

"I Don't Know Anything About That Way of Loving."

"Why, no," Bryn said calmly. "I wouldn't mind. I'd have to go out and in through your sitting room, though. Wouldn't you dislike that?"

"What I was trying to tell you when I first started to talk," she reminded him, "is that it's too late for me to keep thinking what I like and what I don't."

So it was settled.

CHAPTER VII

"If this isn't heaven," Sally sighed, looking about her in supreme content, "then don't bother to tell me I'm not dead. I don't want to be disturbed."

She sat on the cool grass in the wavering shadow of the tree against whose smooth trunk Deborah was leaning. The leaves overhead rustled softly in the faint, noonday breeze. Nothing else anywhere in the whole pleasant picture spread before them moved under the white sunlight. They had congregated, all six of them, on the highest corner of the sloping lawn, the orchard behind them, a smooth stretch of sward unrolling down to the stone walls below, broken only by the bright flame of a bed of wallflowers half-way down the slope.

"Me, too," Simon muttered. He lay stretched out in the grass, his pipe in his mouth, his head on Sally's knee.

Bryn sighed. He shifted his position and moved a few inches closer to Deborah. He turned on his stomach, propped himself on his elbows and gazed up at her. A few days ago, before these others had come, and after she and Bryn had decided to be friends, she would have smiled down at him a little. It was fun to smile at Bryn, once one had started. He always looked as if he liked being smiled at. But now, Deborah pretended not to know that he was looking at her, and regarded steadily the hills far away. Because Madeline was here now, and Madeline might not like it.

A mist came into her eyes, as she thought of Madeline, and the hills swam in a noonday fog. Poor Madeline wasn't happy, for all her pretense at light-heartedness, Deborah told herself. How could she be happy, seeing Bryn married, actually married, to another girl, a girl who wore a wedding ring that he had given her, who had taken his name? Bryn was lovely. Even with Madeline here, he hadn't changed his attitude to Deborah a bit. He acted exactly as if they really were married, really loved each other, and he didn't try to keep Madeline from seeing.

That night, as usual, Deborah went into Grandmother's room to make sure that she was settled comfortably, and to kiss her good-night. Grandmother was sitting up in her big bed, her silvery hair brushed smooth and drawn back into a neat little braid.

"Deborah."

"Yes, Grandmother?"

"Do you not like these friends of Bryn's, my darling?"

Deborah looked up in surprise. "Why yes. Yes, of course. I think they are lovely. Sally is sweet. She is like a talking doll. And she is very kind."

"And Madeline?"

"Nobody could help liking Madeline," Deborah replied. "She's charming, isn't she, Grandmother? I love to hear her talk. It's so slow and lazy. It's because she and Simon are from Texas Sally says. And Madeline is beautiful. Don't you think she's beautiful, Grandmother?"

"Not as beautiful as you are, my child," Grandmother answered fondly. "But she is very attractive." She was silent again. Then, "If you like them, Deborah, and find them pleasant company, what is it that has been troubling you ever since they arrived?"

"Troubling me?" Deborah answered, startled. "But . . . I am not troubled."

"Oh, Deborah," Grandmother said reproachfully.

Deborah raised her eyes, and there was a deep, happy smile in them.

"I am happy, Grandmother darling," she said.

"And you love Bryn? He loves you, of that I am sure. But of your love for him . . . sometimes I am not so sure. You admire him? You think him strong and thoughtful and quick, and kind?"

"Yes, Grandmother."

"You respect him? You are proud of whatever he does?"

"Yes, Grandmother."

"And," she put her hand out gently and lifted Deborah's chin. "Why, you are blushing, child! Surely that ought to be sufficient answer to my next question, but I must have your words, Deborah. Forgive me. But you know your complete happiness means everything to me. Deborah, tell me; when you see him, and he smiles that twinkling smile of his, don't you want to go to him, and caress his cheek, as you are caressing mine, and put your hand on his hair, and touch his shoulder? Isn't that what you'd like to do, Deborah?"

Deborah caught her breath. Her eyes darkened. Her lips quivered faintly. And then, "Yes, Grandmother," she said.

"Of course," Grandmother said happily. "Well, then you love him. You couldn't help loving him. Go, my child. Kiss me good-night, and leave me. I shall rest, tonight. I am happy."

Out in the hall, safely away from the door, Deborah stood and put both her hands over her face. Her brain was whirling. There was a dreadful lump in her throat, and something ached in her breast. Alone in the darkness, she stood, trying to calm herself, trying to be cool and uncaring again.

A voice spoke to her. It was Bryn. He was in the hall beside her. He was whispering, so as not to disturb Grandmother.

"Deborah," he was saying anxiously, "Deborah, what has happened?"

Deborah did not answer. Instead, she dropped her hands and stared up through the shadows at his face. He drew a quick breath, then put his arms out and held her close to him. His coat was rough under her cheek.

"Deborah, sweetheart," he said brokenly, "what's happened to you? Why are you trembling?"

For only a second she lay there, and then she lifted her head and pulled herself away. "Don't touch me," she said in a furious whisper. "Oh, don't you dare to touch me!" and she flew down the stairs and out to the others, sitting talking in the welcome darkness of the veranda.

Deborah sat on the couch before the long balcony window in her own sitting room. The afternoon was very hot. Bryn and Tubby and Simon had gone following the brook, looking for a pool to swim in.

Mason Davis of the Laketon community in Gray county recently walked into the office of Ralph R. Thomas, county agricultural agent, with two stools of wheat. One stool had 26 stalks 30 inches high, while the other had only 13 stalks 20 inches high. Stalks on the first stool were twice as large as in the second one. Davis explained that these were average stools from the same field planted at the same time, the only difference being that the larger stool came from ground that was contour listed, while the second one was from land with straight rows.

QUIHI NOTES.

And if the woman will not be willing to follow thee, then thou shalt be clear from this my oath. Gen. 24:8.

What now? Is Abraham backing away from his sanguine expectation, his commanding confidence of yesterday, that the angel of the Lord going with that matrimonial missionary, Eliezer, would bring things to a happy termination? The servant, he seems to think, might find the right damsel for Isaac, but there might be a hitch in getting her to come away from her homeland. Would that bar the persuasion of divine influence? Would that counter the will of God? As a matter of fact, faith is not always hovering on equally high levels, on the serene heights of flawless, doubtless assurance. The human heart often changes with the varying sky, from the deep azure blue of happy certainty, to the streaky blotches of fickleness, and even to the dreary, somber, leaden overcast that forebodes agitation, tempest, tornadoes, tearing things to pieces, upsetting happiness and certainty. Was Abraham under the changing weather now? If not, what explanation will the words above permit? There is a problem involved, no doubt. There are good folks that line up the promises of God, and the number is legion, that He will hear prayer, regardless of what is asked for, from a small chip of a diamond to the radiant sun in the sky; God is bound to grant it. Others refuse prayer because, they argue, if prayer were efficacious, helpful, all the ills of the world would have been prayed out of existence long ago. How does Abraham stand? He admits the superior knowledge of God when to grant, when to deny our petition; where a denial is more beneficial than the granting; where a granted prayer would, automatically, stop loyalty, faith, allegiance to God, after man is equipped with the goods for an "independent," i. e. godless life, whereas God strives, and our innermost heart strives, not away from, but "nearer, my God, to thee". Many a heart were breaking today, if the prayers of yesteryear had been granted. Abraham knows, God wants our prayer, but he admits that God, in His wisdom and mercy, might differ from our plans, yet selecting the best and most satisfactory course in the long run. Does your heart wish for less?

Surrounded by a circle of home-folks and relatives, a bridal couple was united in holy wedlock, going out, as it should be, with the blessing of God for their future life. It was Mr. Wesley de Grodt, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben de Grodt, having chosen Miss Della Saathoff, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Saathoff, for his life companion. The ring ceremony was part of the service. Mr. Elmer Saathoff and Miss Ida Balzen were the witnesses. After a short trip the newly-weds will be at home in the Verdina section. Our best wishes go with them.

A trip in that direction, some days before, took us to the home of Mrs. W. J. Saathoff, a patient for many years and with little prospects for a radical change. Though suffering with additional ailments, we found her in her usual patient and trustful attitude, taking each day as a new gift from above and consigning her future to the mercy of God in His various ways of leading homeward-bound. There is a silent sermon for dissatisfied souls, though bright sunshine covers their path.

After a brief stay at home, Mrs. E. Thomas had to take her abode at the hospital again. But a second visit there showed her room vacant. Let's hope the situation points to complete recovery and right soon.

Rain has interfered a good deal with our Sunday schedule of late, and with our contemplated visits in various sections. We try to make up. The members of the Ladies' Aid have decided to drop the scheduled meeting for December entirely and get ready for the February meet.

13th: English service at 10:30; Sunday school in full at 9:30; German service at New Fountain at 2; Luther League program at 7 P. M. There is food for thought and soul for you. Come.

D'HANIS F. F. A. NEWS.

The F. F. A., in its regular meeting of November 23, made plans for two programs: a chapel program for December 23, and another to be presented before the P. T. A. on January 3. Ferd Rock was appointed to take charge of a contest to raise money for the club.

The F. F. A. of D'Hanis will send delegates to the Poultry Show to be held at Sabinal December 12. The poultry judging team will consist of Ferd Rock, Joe Britz, and Lawrence Rudinger; the live-stock judges will be Charles Saathoff, Homer Nester, and Albert Britz; members of the terracing team are Oliver Reinhart, Orson Secrist, and Ferd Rock. The boys hope to come home with a silver cup and several medals.

D'HANIS H. D. CLUB STUDIES WARDROBE PLANNING.

In addressing the members of the D'Hanis Home Demonstration Club, who met at the School Auditorium on Friday, Dec. 4, 1936, Miss Irene Hawkins made the following statements: "I'm taking inventory of clothing for the family we make the following divisions: Outer clothing, underwear, sleeping garments, footwear, headwear, accessories, and cosmetics."

"The value of keeping accounts for the family is to show how and where the money goes. Leaks are sometimes discovered in keeping accounts. By leaks we mean the unwise selection made in purchasing clothing of poor quality, line, and color."

Plans for a Christmas social were discussed by the Club members.

Mrs. H. Long was a very welcome guest of the Club.

New members were as follows: Mesdames Alf. Zinsmeyer, J. P. Ephraim, R. E. Wentz, H. Biry, Misses Lucy Roth, Lorine Zinsmeyer, and Cornelia Koch.

There were 9 regular members present.

A REPLY.

Some time ago there appeared an article in print about a statement made from some other precinct. The paper quoted the party as stating that the people of this town made a mistake when they voted down a bond issue some months ago, and according to the statement in the paper it was made to appear that the people in the other precinct were more progressive than ours.

Now let us see if they are more progressive. If they are, then we must admit that we do not know what the word progressive means. This particular district in the southeastern part of Medina County has a school tax of one dollar per hundred dollar valuation of property, and the property is assessed nearly double of what it is for state and county purposes. There is no private high school there, because the people would like to have such a school are in most cases not able to pay the property tax for the public school. There were filed in the District Court of this County a large number of tax suits for delinquent school taxes last year, as the records will disclose to anyone who cares to take the time to look into it.

On the other hand, Castroville has a private school building costing $25,000.00 which 95 per cent of the children of this district attend. This school does not cost the State nor the County one cent, and the pupils buy their own text books. To operate the public school here no special tax is needed, as the State apportionment of 250 scholastics all goes to the public school, which amounts to $5000. No tax suits have ever been entered against a delinquent tax payer in this whole commissioner precinct, for state or county taxes, much less for school taxes. The people in this precinct only vote for such taxes as they can pay.

Now, dear readers, which do you think is the more prosperous and progressive? The district where they pay their taxes and which has a clear record of never having had a tax suit filed against any of its taxpayers, or the district where taxes are so high that the taxpayer cannot pay and has to be proceeded against by suit in the Court for delinquent taxes? Judge for yourselves.

And now, fellow citizens, do not listen to someone who has no interest here, whose statements can be easily contradicted, if you look up the record.

Although members of the Castroville Taxpayers League had to stand damage suits and other accusations tried to be brought against them, and threatening communications sent them, which they gladly faced, and although they expended one thousand dollars to save the taxpayers large or small, they stand where they have always stood, four square for the rights and traditions that their ancestors brought with them when they settled here a century ago. And while this expense was borne by only a few, whereas contributions to that defense fund should have been made by all who believe with us and who benefited thereby, the Castroville Taxpayers League wants to take this occasion to warn the people not to stand idly by and let strangers come here and control their destinies, for some day you might wake up and regret your failure to give financial aid to those who protected you and yours, and then you will find it is too late. It may be you might say, my neighbor is on the other side and I do not want to offend him, and I wish to stay on friendly terms with him. All right, if you want your neighbor to vote you into bondage and heavy taxes, against which you will howl when you have to pay it, it is all right with us, but don't think that you can sit back all the time and benefit by it just because you do not want to offend your neighbor who votes taxes on you and who may not care even if you know it, and then let the few who have heretofore always paid the bills, pay again.

Recurring to the statement made, we are sure the party did not know the real issue involved. Did he know that of those voting for the tax, about 50 together had less than one thousand dollars property assessed, and among these assessment were found property never before assessed, as watches, clocks, guitars, violins, jewelry, pianos, carpenter tools, radio, sewing machines, and some even voted who had no property assessed, when the law specifies a voter in bond elections must be the owner of real estate. And even a large number of those on relief rolls voted for the tax. There were also votes cast for the tax by some who had previously been on the pauper list.

We think, therefore, the making of such a statement is directly opposed to a large majority of the qualified voters of this district, not only because the issue had been thoroughly discussed and understood and defeated, but because to further agitate the matter is but to prolong and greatly magnify the feeling which has been engendered by the reviving of an old issue, past and forgotten.

MRS. GEIGER KILLED.

A tragic end to a long and useful life was the death of Mrs. Wm. Geiger, 82 years of age, which occurred at 3:00 P. M. Thursday, December 3, 1936, at LaCoste. Returning home from a walk she crossed the railroad track at the depot at LaCoste and was struck by an incoming train. She was instantly killed.

Mrs. Geiger, nee Rosa Engel, was born April 2, 1854, at Hohenrueh, Wurtemberg, Germany, and was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran Church at Gschwend. On Sept. 27, 1877, she was united in holy wedlock with Mr. William Geiger. Their union was blessed with 6 children during their stay in their home country. One son, George, died there the age of two years. Mr. Geiger emigrated in February, 1889, to Texas and his wife and the five children followed him in Nov. 1890. Their children were Marie, William, John Fritz and Sophie. They made their home on a farm at the lower Medina river. Since 1893 they lived on the farm near LaCoste, where the following children were born: Caroline, Albert, Reinhard and Emma.

Grandma Geiger enjoyed the companionship of her dear husband for 38 years. He died on Dec. 9, 1911. Three years later, the bereaved widow and mother had to mourn the death of her first-born son, William, who died Oct. 10, 1918. The deceased Grandma was like her husband, very well-known and beloved citizen and Christian, and blessed with many hardships in life she enjoyed excellent health. In the last years she like to walk around, visiting her children and friends nearby. Returning home from such a walk the accident happened. She was 82 years 8 months and 1 day old.
